

I firmly believe in the government's right to perform this type of activity, but legislating in this way is a losing battle. The technology already exists to bypass this legislation through software like PGPPhone, which will encrypt the VOIP traffic, making recovery by anyone in-stream (such as an ISP) impossible. I believe this an ill-advised course of action to pursue.